You've been in school for years now. You've used the blackboard, chalk, books, and notebooks. You've been allowed or prohibited from using your cell phone. Maybe you've had an interactive digital whiteboard in the classroom. You've gone through the remote lessons during the lockdown. No one knows better than you what is needed in school or university. Which technologies could help students learn better or support teachers in their work. Which tools could make a lesson lively and interactive or take us beyond the concept of a lesson.
